

▷ AMBITIOUS DOMES

While Renaissance architects used the hemispherical dome, those of the Baroque preferred a more dynamic, elongated form. On the underside, in contrast to the ordered coffering of Renaissance domes (see pp.146-147), Baroque architects favored more intricate decoration, often utilizing overlaid shapes and geometries.

△ STATUES IN MOTION

Artifice and illusion are two key characteristics of the Baroque style, blurring the distinctions between art, architecture, and the surrounding world. Whether in painting or sculpture, figures are frequently shown in motion, as if alive, and breaking out of their frames.

◀ SAN CARLO ALLE QUATTRO FONTANE

Designed by enigmatic Italian architect Francesco Borromini, San Carlo alle Quattro Fontane is one of the most recognizable buildings of the Italian Baroque. Borromini made a virtue of the small, compressed site by creating a series of forms and volumes of extraordinary drama and tension.
