

Building green

Gardens by the Bay is a futuristic park in Singapore. Its 18 steel-framed supertrees not only provide support for real plants and flowers but also harvest rainwater and incorporate air intakes, exhaust vents, and solar panels.