

Long story

There has been a settlement on the site of Barcelona since well before Roman times, and the modern city is made up of buildings from many different periods, built with materials ranging from timber, brick, and stone to concrete and glass.