

May

28

585 BCE

Predicting an eclipse

Greek philosopher Thales correctly foretold a solar eclipse in Asia Minor, as recorded in The Histories by Herodotus.

The darkening skies brought a sudden end to the Battle of Halys.

Born this day

1968 Kylie Minogue, Australian actor and singer. Known as the Princess of Pop, she has sold more than 70 million records worldwide.

2018

Cheese champion

After winning his 21st race, British soldier Chris Anderson was hailed as the greatest Double Gloucester Cheese Rolling champion ever. At this annual event in Brockworth, UK, participants run down a hill to catch a rolling round of cheese.

1907 Racing motorcycles

The Isle of Man TT race started with 25 competitors riding their motorcycles for 254 km (158 miles). The prize for the winner was a silver statue and £25. This annual race is a deadly test of speed and skill on mountainous roads with 264 corners.

Also on this day

1830 US president Andrew Jackson signed the Indian Removal Act, which took away the land rights of Indigenous American peoples.

1932 The Afsluitdijk Dam was completed in the Netherlands, with an incredible 32 km (20 miles) of flood defences against the North Sea.

1936 British mathematician Alan Turing submitted his article On Computable Numbers, which described a universal computing machine.