

RUNNING FOR COVER

This trio of Thescelosaurus scramble across a Late Cretaceous forest in what is now North America, possibly in a bid to escape a predator. A 10-ft (3-m) long ornithomimid, Thescelosaurus was one of the final dinosaurs to evolve before the end of the Mesozoic Era. It likely spent its days browsing through low-lying vegetation.

