

Where animals live

The world is made up of a variety of different habitats, from magnificent tropical forests and freezing, treeless tundras on land to colorful, sunlit coral reefs of the seas and cold, dark ocean depths. Each habitat has its own unique climate and supports its own ecosystem of plant and animal life.

