

At the centre of this maze lived the Minotaur.

Every nine years, seven boys and seven girls were sent from Athens to be fed to the Minotaur. This was payment from the King of Athens, Aegeus [ay-GEE-us], for accidentally causing the death of Minos's son many years before. The third payment was now due.

