

Once the Olympian gods ruled the world, they decided to populate it with humans. From the beginning, however, the humans and the gods had a difficult relationship.

Sometimes the gods were cruel, while other times they were generous. Still, people had to learn to live in a world where their gods were unpredictable – and they had to be careful to keep the gods happy. These are the stories of how they fared.