

Cleaning up

Animal poop may not look very appealing to us, but to dung beetles, it is food and shelter. Whether they roll it home or nest in it where it falls, one thing is certain: dung beetles love poop.

Dung beetles roll quickly to keep other sneaky dung beetles from stealing their dung balls!

Female dung beetles often hitch rides on top of dung balls, laying their eggs inside them.

A dung ball can weigh 50 times more than the beetle rolling it!

Rolling experts

Male dung beetles are well adapted to dung collection. Spurs on their strong back legs help them push the balls along. These incredibly strong dung beetles are called "rollers."
