

Bugs that glow

Animals that create light are called “bioluminescent.”

While a number of animals can do this, including some ocean jellyfish, fireflies are the only glowing creatures that can fly. They dance through the air in search of mates, lighting up the forest with their bioluminescence.

HOW THEY LIGHT UP

Fireflies make their glowing light by mixing oxygen and a fiery substance called luciferin inside their bodies.

Adult male
Photinus firefly