SPIDERS

Spider silk

Spider silk is tough, strong, and very light. It has been used to make cloth and even violin strings, but it is very difficult to extract in large quantities, so spider silk is not often used by people.

OYSTERS

Pearls

Some mollusks, such as oysters and mussels, produce pearls when things enter their shells that should not be there. Pearls can be used in jewelry.

SILKWORMS

Silk

Most of the silk we use comes from the cocoons of mulberry silkworms.

For more than 5,000 years, the cocoons of mulberry silkworms have been used to produce high-quality fabric items.
