

Vertebrates are animals with backbones, including mammals, birds, fish, reptiles, and amphibians. They make up only around 3 percent of all the animals on Earth!

Vertebrates look big and powerful in comparison to invertebrates, but the truth is that without bugs and their close relatives, most vertebrates would become extinct!

