

GOLDEN RETRIEVER
Canis familiaris

Bred in Scotland to retrieve game, this dog is loyal and intelligent, and makes an excellent pet. It loves being in water.

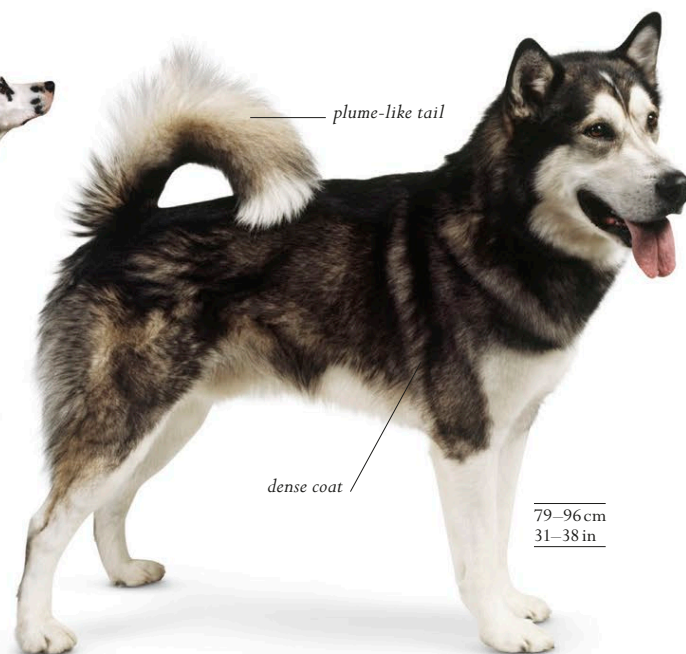

85–100 cm
2¾–3¼ ft

63–79 cm
25–31 in

DALMATIAN
Canis familiaris

Initially bred as guard dogs and hunting companions, dalmatians subsequently became coach dogs, escorting horsedrawn carriages. Today they are kept as pets.

79–96 cm
31–38 in

ALASKAN MALAMUTE
Canis familiaris

Bred in Alaska as a sled dog, the malamute resembles the ancestral wolf, and may be among the earliest domestic breeds.

60 cm
23½ in

BASSET HOUND
Canis familiaris

This dog was bred as a tracking animal. Its short legs allow it to move easily through dense vegetation.

MANED WOLF
Chrysocyon brachyurus

An opportunistic omnivore, the maned wolf inhabits S. American savanna, where its long legs help it to see over tall grasses.

49 cm
19½ in

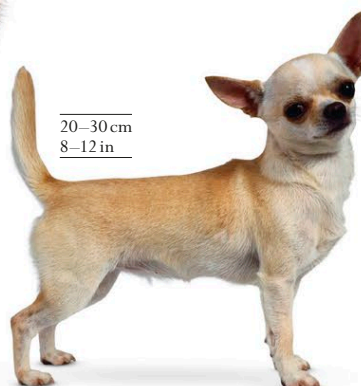

SMOOTH FOX TERRIER
Canis familiaris

An enthusiastic digger, small enough to enter fox burrows, this lively dog was bred to keep farms free of vermin.

ROUGH COLLIE
Canis familiaris

Originally bred as a herding dog in the Scottish Highlands, this dog has an athletic build disguised by a thick coat.

20–30 cm
8–12 in

CHIHUAHUA
Canis familiaris

The smallest of domestic dog breeds, but bold-natured nonetheless, the chihuahua originated in Mexico. Its coat can be of almost any colour.

67–85 cm
26–34 in

0.9–1.4 m
35–55 in

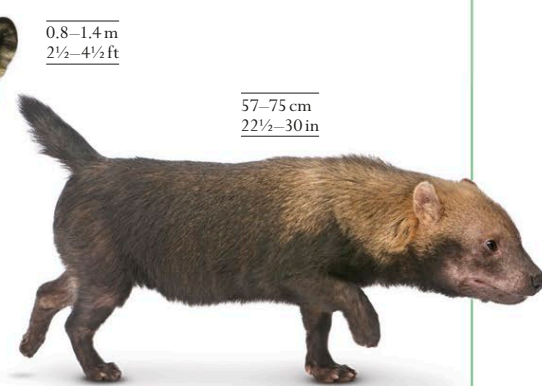

DHOLE
Cuon alpinus

Known throughout its Asian range as a fierce predator, this wild canid lives and hunts in packs, targeting large mammals, such as deer and goats.

AFRICAN WILD DOG
Lycan pictus

This endangered canid lives in highly organized packs, hunting and rearing young co-operatively and supporting sick and injured relatives.

57–75 cm
22½–30 in

BUSH DOG
Speothos venaticus

This distinctive, short-legged species is a predator of the Amazon region. It hunts mainly rodents, working alone or in a pack.