

8 For a second time, the hishaku is used to ladle water from the kama into the chawan, this time to make the Matcha tea. The hishaku rests on the kama when not in use.

9 Tea is whisked slowly at first and then briskly in a W pattern until froth forms on the surface of the tea.

10 The host puts the bowl in her palm and rotates the bowl twice in a clockwise direction, ending with the most ornate side of the chawan facing the guest.

11 While still kneeling, the host presents the tea to the guest, then bows.

THE ROLE OF THE GUEST

The guest bows to the host and turns the bowl twice clockwise so that the most favorable side of the chawan is now facing the host.

The guest consumes the tea in three sips. The last sip can be slurped to show the host that the guest enjoyed the good quality of the tea.

The guest gives the empty chawan back to the host.
