

50.7 KEY LANGUAGE FIRST CONDITIONAL WITH "UNLESS"

You can use "unless" instead of "if" in conditional sentences.
"Unless" means "if...not," so the future result depends on the suggested action not happening.

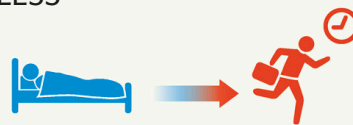

If you don't
Unless you } study hard, you will fail your exams.

50.8 FURTHER EXAMPLES FIRST CONDITIONAL WITH "UNLESS"

If you don't
Unless you } get up now, you'll be late for work.

I'll be angry if he doesn't turn
I'll be angry unless he turns } that music down.

50.9 REWRITE THE SENTENCES USING "UNLESS"

If they don't listen, they'll get it wrong.

Unless they listen, they'll get it wrong.

① You'll damage the floor if you don't cover it.

② If you don't go to bed, you'll be tired tomorrow.

③ He'll get annoyed if you don't speak politely.

④ The cat won't run away if she's not frightened.

⑤ She'll arrive on time if her train isn't delayed.

⑥ If you don't attach it securely, it will break.

⑦ We'll do the job if it's not too difficult.

