TWO CAREERS

Teacher Selim Hussain and financial consultant Josie MacDonald talk to Joan Riddon about their career paths since finishing their studies.

SELIM: After I completed my advanced studies in nursing, I worked in teaching hospitals and enjoyed a fabulously interesting career. At 32 I had a very demanding role in emergency medicine.

Once I became a father and there were some extra stresses at work, it became too much and I decided to resign, despite loving the work. I was lucky because one of my old professors contacted me and I began teaching part-time. Training nurses is the best job in the world!

JOSIE: My first job was as a financial assistant. This was great experience and it helped me get a job as a corporate banker. I always met my targets, so I was quickly promoted and rewarded with large pay raises. I was quite wealthy by the time I was 35.

Then came the worldwide financial slump. My bank lost money and many highly paid executives lost their jobs, including me. I was now unemployed for the first time in my working life. I worked freelance, as a consultant, and then opened my own consultancy, which now employs 50 staff.
