

Technology is a tool, and that is how it should be used. Despite its ability to make life much easier for users and caregivers, technology must be used wisely, with a human touch. Remember that for anybody, neurodivergent or not, technology can never replace real love and care, real social interactions, and real emotional connections. EFY

