

19 Advice and suggestions

English uses modal verbs such as “could,” “should,” and “must” for advice or suggestions. They can be used to help co-workers in difficult or stressful situations.

 New language Modal verbs for advice

Aa Vocabulary Workplace pressures

 New skill Giving advice

19.1 MATCH THE SITUATIONS TO THE CORRECT ADVICE

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 1 I earn less than most of my colleagues. | You shouldn't work so hard. |
| 2 I have no energy and am tired of my job. | You should get some fresh air. |
| 3 I find the new IT system very confusing. | You ought to ask for a raise. |
| 4 I'm feeling sleepy. | You should order some more. |
| 5 Peter hasn't answered any of my emails. | You could do a training course. |
| | You must give him a call. |

19.2 CROSS OUT THE INCORRECT WORDS IN EACH SENTENCE

You really shouldn't / ~~ought~~ eat your lunch in front of your computer.

-  You could / shouldn't try delegating the task to your team. I'm sure they'd do a great job.
-  Greg ought to / ought apologize to his team for his behavior. He was very rude.
-  Antonio really ought to / shouldn't employ some new staff, or we'll never meet our deadline.
-  We should / should to organize a training course for the interns.
-  The secretary really should / couldn't ask her boss for a raise. She works very hard.

