

94 Comparative adjectives

Comparative adjectives are used to compare two things. They can either be formed by adding the suffix “-er,” or by putting “more” or “less” before the adjective.

See also:

Singular and plural nouns 69

Adjectives 92

94.1 COMPARATIVE ADJECTIVES

For most adjectives with one or two syllables, “-er” is added to make the comparative.

Ahmed is tall.
Ahmed is taller than Jonathan.

“-er” is added to make the comparative.

“Than” is used to introduce the thing that the subject is being compared to.

FURTHER EXAMPLES

Dean is stronger than Carlos.

A plane is faster than a train.

5°F is colder than 85°F.

Sanjay is younger than Tina.

Emma is older than Sharon.

My friends are quicker than me.

! COMMON MISTAKES “THAN” WITH COMPARATIVES

“Then” and “than” can easily be confused because they sound similar, but it is never correct to use “then” to form a comparative.

Ahmed is taller than Jonathan. ✓

The correct word to use in comparatives is “than.”

Ahmed is taller then Jonathan. ✗

“Then” sounds similar to “than,” but it is not correct to use “then” after a comparative.