Rick Clay talks about his plans to get back on track

Rick Clay is one of the world's top athletes. He lives in Wellington, New Zealand. Rick has won five gold medals in the last four years. This year has been very difficult for Rick, however. After he injured himself in the World Championships in Athens in June, Rick hasn't run in any more races.

"It's been a very frustrating year. I'm getting better, but it takes time."

The next world athletics event is in Sydney in December. "I really want to go. But I'm not sure if my knee will be ready."

Rick first became famous five years ago when he broke the 400m world record. Rick has tried to be positive about his health problems. "I've done lots of gardening and I've spent more time with my family. So that's good."
