

Tyson is working all day to meet the deadline for his essay.

to meet a deadline

[to finish something within a given time]

I like continuous assessment more than just taking final exams.

continuous assessment

[grading based on work done over a long period]

I've finished the first draft of my essay, but I'm sure that I'll have to make lots of changes to it.

a first draft

[a first, rough version of a piece of written work]

Their views on teaching a class are polar opposites.

polar opposites

[completely different]

Kate and Helen take strikingly different after-school classes.

strikingly different

[surprisingly not alike]

Boris almost missed the deadline for his research project.

to miss a deadline

[to fail to finish something within a given time]

Chris passed his final college exams with flying colors.

to pass with flying colors (US) / colours (UK)

[to perform excellently on a test]

I'd like you to compare and contrast these two pictures.

to compare and contrast

[to consider and describe the similarities and differences between things]

There is a clear distinction between these two experiments.

a clear distinction

[an obvious difference]

Practicing for her class presentation made a world of difference.

a world of difference

[a significant level of difference]
