

13.2 USEFUL EXPRESSIONS

I had to pay my landlord the equivalent of one month's rent as a deposit.

a deposit

[money that a tenant pays to a landlord before moving into a property]

We had a house-warming party to celebrate buying our new apartment.

a house-warming party

[an informal party that you give after moving into a new house or apartment]

Real estate is in high demand, so prices are increasing.

real estate (US) / property (UK)

[houses and apartments that are for sale or rented out]

The local stores sell a wide selection of food and drinks.

local

[belonging to the area where you live]

We have a roomer who lives in our spare bedroom.

a roomer (US) / a lodger (UK)

[a person who pays to live in your house]

My new landlord wants a reference from my previous landlord.

a reference

[a letter describing your character and ability to pay your rent]

The rent for my new apartment is $500, including utilities.

including utilities

[the rent covers the bills such as electricity, water, and gas]

We live in an attractive residential area with lots of parks.

a residential area

[a part of town where most buildings are houses or apartments]

My roommate never does the dishes.

a roommate (US) / housemate (UK)

[a person you share your house or apartment with]

We gave notice to our landlord two months before moving out.

to give notice

[to announce to your landlord that you wish to move out]

