

17.12 Listen and read.

May I have a mango, please?

May I have a mango, please?

Say this to ask someone to give you something.

Use a or an if you're asking for one thing.

May I have some kiwis, please?

Use some if you're asking for two or more things.

How it works

May I have is the question used to ask for something.

A, an, and some are indefinite articles. Use indefinite articles when you don't want to talk about a specific example of a thing. Put a or an in front of singular nouns, and some in front of plural nouns.

